

Teaching and research training

- Doctoral programmes

The University of Jaén's doctoral programmes will prepare you to carry out cutting-edge research in any field, join prestigious research groups and continue your academic or professional career with the highest possible qualification.

- Training for teaching and research staff

You can consult all the calls for applications, regulations and procedures relating to teaching and research training courses here.

- Training in soft skills

Each year, the Doctoral School organises two editions (in-person and online) of the 'Soft Skills Training Programme' to give PhD students an opportunity to complete the programme during their time at the university and to provide information about different funding opportunities to allow them to continue their research.

- Activities and Grants Programme

Each academic year, the Doctoral School organises teaching and research training activities and programmes.

- Doctoral Programme Training Activities

You can consult specific training programmes and activities for each field here.