Protocol for the prevention and response to sexual harassment

The University of Jaén maintains a firm commitment to promoting equality, respect for diversity, and ensuring safe environments for its entire community. Within this framework, the Protocol for the Prevention of and Response to Sexual Harassment, Harassment Based on Sex, Sexual Orientation, Gender Identity, or Gender Expression has been established as a fundamental tool for preventing, detecting, and addressing any conduct that violates human dignity.

This protocol reflects the zero-tolerance policy towards any form of harassment and establishes a streamlined, confidential, and legally sound procedure designed to protect potential victims and ensure an effective institutional response. It also contributes to building a university culture based on equality, inclusion, and mutual respect.

Related documents

- Protocol for the prevention and response to sexual harassment