

Mainstreaming gender in teaching practice and university research

The overall objective of this project is to mainstream and integrate gender equality into the teaching and research model of the University of Jaén (UJA). To achieve this, the project aims to increase the number of course guides that incorporate Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) related to gender equality by providing specific training and creating guides to facilitate their integration. It also seeks to increase the number of bibliographic references that include a gender perspective in course guides, tailored to specific disciplines, particularly in scientific and/or traditionally male-dominated fields, by providing specific guides and resources. Furthermore, it aims to develop a guide with recommendations for integrating a gender perspective into research and teaching, and to offer support when needed. The primary target audience is the teaching and research staff (PDI) of the University of Jaén, with students also benefiting from this implementation.
