

Machado Jiménez, Almudena

Área

Feminisms, utopian studies, dystopian fiction, contemporary feminist dystopia, gender studies, afrofuturism, women authors in the 20th and 21st century, patriarchal utopias, gender and conflict

Datos de contacto

Correo electrónico

amachado [arroba] ujaen [punto] es

Sitio web

<https://orcid.org/0000-0002-4792-6711>

Teléfono

(+34) 953 21 17 50

Dirección

Campus Las Lagunillas

Office: Building D2-206

Almudena Machado-Jiménez is a PhD candidate at the University of Jaén, where she works as a lecturer at the Department of English Philology since 2016. She obtained a BA degree in English Studies and two MAs at the University of Jaén, one in Teacher Training in Foreign Languages and another in English Studies with a specialisation in English Literatures and Cultures. During her PhD studies, she has been a visiting researcher at the SOAS University of London and the ULICES University of Lisbon. She has publications in international journals and books, on the topics of patriarchal utopias, dystopian fiction and feminist authors of the 20th and 21st century. She is the Vice-President of the Association of Young Researchers on Anglophone Studies (ASYRAS) and is actively engaged in the field of English Studies, working as an associate editor of international journals, like Gaudeamus and The Grove. Working Papers on English Studies, and contributing to the organization of conferences and workshops on research training and feminism.